Western Graduate Is Rescued After Four Days In Pacific

A Western Teachers College graduate, Lieut. B. J. Eberenz, 24, of Louisville, was among a group of nine army fliers rescued from almost certain death after floating for four days in the Pacific ocean, it was learned here today.

Two Navy aviators, who landed on the water amid 40-foot waves to pick up the army airmen, were awarded Navy Crosses for their exploit.

The rescue was made by Ensign P. M. Fidler, 23, Ivanhoe, N. C., and Aviation Machinist's Mate Leonard H. Wagoner, Bakersville, N. C., while on patrol duty at dusk Wednesday.

"Fidler and his crew," the Navy announced, "brought their huge plane into a trough between the tossing life rafts after releasing most of their service loads. The nine men clambered aboard the Navy plane. Fidler then gunned his motors and with throttle wide open lifted his plane from the sea."

War Has Revealed Many Thrilling Experiences For Captain Eberenz

In January of 1942, the College Heights Herald printed a story that told about Lieutenant Richard J. Eberenz, a Western graduate, and his thrilling experiences in which he was forced down at sea. That same Lieut. Eberenz came to Western on Friday, January 22, to see what this quiet old Hill was like after being on almost constant duty that for two years took him all over the Pacific. One thing that revealed his accomplishments was the two silver bars on each shoulder. He has been promoted to the rank of captain, Army Air Corps.

enz uses names that are famous to civilians just as though he were using every day English.

There are no great changes in the Captain except a little tenseness that is characteristic of all pilots. Captain Eberenz has been given 30 days sick leave to make up for the months of harrowing experiences in other parts of the world. He visited the Hill with his father, Mr. Steve Eberenz, and his brother, Steve, Jr.

Captain Eberenz has been flying B-17's and it was in this type plane that he was forced down at sea only a few short weeks after he had tangled with the Japs in Hawaii on December 7, 1941.

Among his many exciting experiences was the famed battle of Midway. Captain Eberenz was flying one of the B-17's in a flight of fifteen that dropped tons of bombs on the same aircraft carriers from whose decks came the planes that bombed Midway itself.

Out of this battle came an incident that shows how small this world really is. Ensign John Magda was in the same battle and was forced down when he ran out of gas. He spent a week on a rubber raft but when he was rescued, Lieut. Eberenz heard of the rescue and managed to meet Ensign Magda in Honolulu.

After Midway, a short rest, and Captain Eberenz was back in battle. He took part in the Marine attack on Guadalcanal and subsequently flew from Henderson Field after it was in U. S. hands. Captain Eber-

John Edmiston Killed On Leyte

John A. Edmiston, Jr., was killed in action on Leyte, Philippine Islands, on November 3, while leading a machine gun squad in an attack on a heavily fortified Japanese position, the assault on which was successful.

Due to heavy casualties in his squad, he was forced to take over the machine gun alone. He was killed by enemy machine gun fire when attempting to move his position when heavy fire was brought down on it.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Edmiston of Kellyville, Oklahoma, and he attended Western from '39 to '42.

Ending the season with only eight men on the squad the Hilltoppers have experienced a case of "constant depletion." The early part of the season saw the induction into the Navy of Roy Mann, after he had played only two games for the Toppers. Number two on the list was Bill Hays, who was called into active duty by the Army Air Force after making a name for himself during the Eastern jaunt. Ken Bales and John Mills left the squad after Christmas, and Hal Gilmore was placed on the inactive list because of back injuries. Harry Gossett was called into service by the Navy, and Carroll Brooks, who came from College High at mid-term was ordered to duty by the air corps. Bill Edmiston was the last to go, being called by the Navy as the Toppers entrained for Chicago.
